ABSTRACT

This bulletin is a detailed list of source materials and resource packets for teachers, covering specific topics from the perspectives of anthropology, archaeology, and ethnography. All materials listed are available through the Smithsonian Institution. Pricing information is given with each item, and many materials are free of charge. Materials include information leaflets, bibliographies, books, a brief description of the archives, and a list of titles in the Smithsonian Series in Ethnographic Inquiry and the Smithsonian Series in Archaeological Inquiry. Most listings include title, author, publication date, and price. (DQE)

NATIONAL ANTHROPOLOGICAL ARCHIVES
National Museum of Natural History
MRC 152
Washington, D.C. 20560

The National Anthropological Archives (NAA), organized in 1965 as part of the Smithsonian's Department of Anthropology in the National Museum of Natural History, incorporated the archives of the former Bureau of American Ethnology. It serves as a depository for the records of the Department of Anthropology and its predecessor organizations and collects documents relating to all cultures of the world and the history of anthropology, and makes these available for research. The manuscript collection dates from about 1848 to the present and includes some 40,000 individual manuscript items described under about 5,000 main items in an indexed card catalog. The Catalog to Manuscripts at the National Anthropological Archives, 4 vols., 1975, has been published by G. K. Hall and Co., 70 Lincoln St., Boston, MA 02111. This title can be found in many libraries. The Guide to the National Anthropological Archives, Smithsonian Institution by James R. Glenn is available in the NAA.

The photographic holdings of the National Anthropological Archives are estimated at 90,000 items, and most are dated between 1860 and 1930. A general file of black-and-white prints relating to the North American Indians includes portraits of individuals and of groups as well as pictures illustrating dwellings, clothing, industries, and other arts and activities. Other photographic series relate to non-Indian cultures and to the work of specific anthropologists and other individuals. Two available listings of frequently requested photographs are: Selected Portraits of Prominent American Indians; Selected Photographs Illustrating Material Culture around the World; and Selected Photographs Illustrating North American Indian Life. For further information on purchasing photographs, write or call the National Anthropological Archives, National Museum of Natural History, MRC 152, Washington, D.C. 20560; (202) 357-1976.

The Archives are open for research from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, national holidays excepted. Materials are not pulled between 12:00 and 2:00.
